The philosophy and function of BRIDGES is Men who have been incarcerated for short or long duration are exposed to the myriad issues of domestic violence, male responsibility and accountability.

We believe that it is valuable to provide a forum where men are given the opportunity to discuss their experiences of perpetrating domestic violence. It is in this forum, that men, possibly for the first time, will experience not only an education about domestic violence but will benefit from the introspective challenge of discussing their beliefs, attitudes and behaviors about domestic violence. This class meets for 2 hours three times per week to have discussions as outlined in this curriculum.

An additional function of the BRIDGES Preparation Program is to promote active and accountable participation in a long-term batterer intervention program once they complete the BRIDGES Preparation Program. The BRIDGES curriculum Participant Workbook and Facilitator Manual are available at no cost at this link: <http://www.csswashtenaw.org/ada/bridges/>

The goal of this is to create a publication on promising and innovative practices in batterer intervention. The publication will be modeled after the successful Family Violence: Emerging Programs for Battered Women and Their Children published in 1998 by the State Justice Institute and the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. This groundbreaking publication inspired the creation of the Greenbook and a multimillion-dollar federal demonstration project to address the co-occurrence in families of domestic violence and child maltreatment.
